

Grammarian/ 'Ah' Counter/ Word of the Day/ Inspiration or Jokemaster

As the Grammarian/Ah Counter, I will be listening to what all speakers say and track inappropriate words or sounds used as a space filler or crutch words will count the inappropriate words such as "well, so, you know, and like.

Sounds may be "ah, um, er, lip smacking or pen cap clicking. I will also note when a speaker repeats a word or phrase, such as "I, I" or "This means, this means". These are known as a "double clutch". At the end of the meeting, I will report the number of times each speaker used space fillers and crutch words.

Today's word of the day is "Journey."

Definition: The term "journey" refers to the act of traveling from one place to another, often implying a significant or meaningful experience, whether physical or metaphorical. It can encompass a range of activities, such as traveling, or it can refer to a process of personal growth, development, or exploration. Overall, a journey involves movement, progress, and often includes various experiences or challenges along the way.

Journey in a sentence: After years of preparation and planning, the couple embarked on a transformative journey around the world, immersing themselves in diverse cultures and breathtaking landscapes.

Joke of the Day:

Why did the journey go to therapy?

Because it had too much baggage!

Why did the scarecrow go on spring break?

Because he wanted to let loose and see some straw-some sights!
